We don't have lockers in fifth grade and we're going to have them in sixth grade and I'm scared I'm going to forget my locker combination. I could write the combination down in my notebook but then I might lose my notebook. Because sometimes that happens. One time I left my notebook on the bus and then the exact same day I lost my jacket. Where did it go? I don't know. Another day I found somebody's shoes in the bathroom. That was funny. I don't know who they belonged to, but whoever it is I bet they would like their shoes back! That bathroom was disgustipating, though. (I made that word up. It means gross.) I wish I knew which bathrooms in the school were clean and then I would only go in those. The good ones would be thumbs up, and the gross ones would be thumbs down.
